

Company Announcement

Elcograf announces the appointment of Edoardo Cuomo as the new Head of the Group, reinforcing its long-term development strategy in a rapidly evolving printing market. A representative of the fourth generation of the Pozzoni family, Edoardo Cuomo returns to Italy after eight years of professional experience in the United Kingdom, bringing an international perspective focused on growth, innovation and strategic collaboration with customers. Alongside this expanded responsibility, he will continue to remain fully accountable for Clays, the UK business and will continue to work closely with the UK leadership team while balancing broader European responsibilities.

The editorial printing industry is undergoing a profound structural transformation. In this context, Elcograf confirms its strong industrial and financial position and reiterates its commitment to continued investment to support the future of books and printed paper in Europe. The Group aims to further develop long-term partnerships with publishers and stakeholders, working together to shape strategic decisions for the future of the market.

“The printing industry is constantly evolving, but Elcograf is well prepared to face this new phase. The Group’s financial strength allows us to keep investing and to build, together with our customers, shared decisions that look concretely and sustainably at the future of printing.”

— Edoardo Cuomo

This appointment follows the 43-year leadership of Mario Pozzoni, who guided the Group through a long phase of growth and consolidation, establishing Elcograf as a leading player in the European editorial printing market. Mario will continue in his role of President for The Pozzoni Group.

With this new phase, Elcograf further strengthens its position as a strategic industrial partner for the European book market, confirming a long-term strategy based on targeted investments, operational excellence, and strong, collaborative relationships with its customers.
